Procure It Before Leaving Home.

Three years ago, while I was visiting relatives at Higginsville, Mo., I was suddenly taken with colic and severe pains in the stomach. My relatives sent me to the doctor for medicine, and he sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, telling the bearer that if that medicine did not cure me he could not prescribe anything that would. I used it and was immediately relieved.—Henry A. Thofers. For sale by Power & Reynolds.

One factor which should be eliminated from Presidential campaigns is the small boy with the tin horn.

IT WAS GEORGE'S BICYCLE.

But His Girl's Father Thought It Was Hers and Locked It Up.

Estelle's young man rides a bicycle, and Estelle has long wanted her pa to buy her a wheel, too, in order, says the Somerville (Mass.) Journal, that she might keep the young man company on his lonely rides. Finally pa was wearied out by a persistency in arts that all loving daughters will understand, and Estelle was provided with a costly nickeled wheel, which, after the usual number of bumps and bruises, she felt competent to ride. One evening not long afterward pa came home about midnight and saw the wheel leaning against the banking near the front piazza, where the dew of evening had been gathering upon its spokes.

"Is that the way Estelle takes care of her expensive presents?" he growled to himself in disgust. "I'll teach her a lesson," he added, with grim determination, and so he trundled the wheel off quietly and locked it up in the carriage house before he went to bed.

That night when Estelle's young man emerged upon the piazza and looked for his wheel, the wheel was gone. Estelle's young man had to walk home—a distance of about four miles.

The next morning at the breakfast table Estelle remarked: "Wasn't it too bad, papa? George left his bicycle at the door last night, and somebody must have stolen it, for when he came to go home about ten o'clock the wheel was gone."

And a great light dawned suddenly upon Estelle's pa as he exclaimed: "Great Scott! was that George's bicycle? I thought it was yours, and to teach you to be more careful of it I locked it up in the carriage house at midnight before I went to bed."

REVERT TO THE CROWN.

How Misers Pile Up Wealth for the Already Rich and Powerful.

It has sometimes happened that persons little deserving, and even rulers, have reaped the harvests which misers have painfully sown. The life of Vandille is a proof of this, says the St. Louis Republic. This man lived upon bread and milk, with the addition of a small glass of sour wine every Saturday. At his death he left $200,000 to the king of France. Audley, the Commonwealth miser, saved $400,000, all of which he reverted to the government. A merchant died at Ispahan in the earlier part of this century who had for many years denied himself and his son every support except a crust of coarse bread. On a certain occasion he was over-tempted to buy a piece of cheese; but, reproaching himself with extravagance, he put the cheese into a bottle and contented himself, and obliged the boy to do the same, with rubbing the crust against the bottle, enjoying the cheese in imagination. One day, returning home later than usual, the merchant found his son eating his crust, which he constantly rubbed against the door. "What are you about, you fool?" was his exclamation. "It is dinner time, father. You have the key, so, as I could not open the door, I was rubbing my bread against it, as I could not get to the bottle." "Cannot you go without cheese one day, you luxurious little rascal? You'll never be rich." And the angry miser kicked the poor boy for not having been able to deny himself the ideal gratification.

Talking Shop.

There is a well-known local poet of true Bohemian instincts who, as often as he can, goes out into the country to commune with nature and shoot bears. He returned recently from one of such trips, and upon arriving in town met Chief Crowley and Capt. Lees, says the San Francisco News Letter. During their conversation the poet, in his free, careless manner, threw back his coat, showing the handle of a bowie knife protruding from his upper vest pocket. "Come, come, that won't do, Dan; you're carrying concealed weapons," said the chief. "Yes, I think we will have to take you in," said Lees. "Gentlemen, gentlemen," said the poet, "don't talk shop."

The Emerson Piano.

The Emerson Piano Company of Boston, Mass., and 25 Fifth Avenue, New York, have had a long and successful experience in the manufacture of pianos, and have attained an enviable reputation. These pianos are of the very finest tone and of the best material and workmanship, and are sold at moderate prices and on reasonable terms. As a general thing, a person buys a piano but once in a lifetime, and it is, therefore, very important that the instrument should combine as many desirable features of a permanent character as possible. Manufacturers of good reputation and of long standing should be the favored ones. The Emerson Piano Company have made and sold upward of sixty thousand pianos; and they warrant every instrument sent from their factory. They will send to any of our readers who may be thinking of purchasing a piano, their illustrated catalogue free of charge; and it will be found to be an interesting publication.
